As The treatment works are already using the best available technology and, as such there is no way of preventing this increase which is potentially damaging to the biodiversity of the river. In response to this the housing figure and, hence, the increase in these discharges needs to be carefully monitored, whilst at the same time being consistent with the requirement to meet objectively assessed housing need. The outcomes of trials may result in the implementation of new technologies for treatment works in the future and this position, and its potential impacts, will also be monitored.	To update wording in response to representation	1366 and 1059
